5. To pay tribute to his father in heaven, the player always points to the sky after he wins a match.

三、 聽誰在說話：在一場公車劫持事件中，協商者(negotiator)、人質(hostage)、劫持者(hostage taker)、記者(reporter)及警察(police officer)分別說了一些話，請聽完每個人的話語後，從下列選項中選出每段話最有可能的說話者，每段話只會播出一遍。

1. In the beginning, the woman looked very calm but after she saw her family arrested, she lost her mind and began to shoot. My husband tried to stop her but he failed. Although I was sad that he got killed, I was so proud of him.
2. After a ten-hour standoff, the bus driver just escaped from the bus. Unfortunately, he said all the people on the bus were killed. Now the police start to approach the bus. It seems that they will storm the bus in no time. We hope there are still some survivors in it.
3. If you don't want to get hurt, just stay where you are and listen to me. All I want is get my voice heard. I was not treated fairly and my supervisor had no right to fire me. I want my job back and have him punished. If I should go to hell for doing this, I want him to go with me.
4. I am sure she doesn't have too many bullets left and I guess she is running out of patience. If we don't do something to end this crisis as soon as possible, more hostages will die. Let's first break the window and then throw tear gas in. As we enter the bus, we should be extremely careful not to shoot the hostages.
5. Please calm down. I come here to help you. I understand you are in a difficult situation but there are some people whose physical conditions cannot allow them to stay too long on the bus. If you can release them, I promise your requests will be taken into full consideration. With so many media around, you don't need to worry that I will lie to you.
